What is the launch about?

PS 9004: Pharmaceutical packaging materials - A Guide to PS 9000

PS 9004 is a guide to the GMP requirements of PS 9000:2001 and has been developed because suppliers to the pharmaceutical industry do not always appreciate fully the reasons why the GMP requirements defined in PS 9000 are needed. For example they are not always aware of how critical it is that all production lines undergo independent rigorous checks to ensure that they are clear of 'rogue' items at the beginning of each batch process (PS 9000: clause 9.1.7) The guide will provide in clear language the appropriate reason for each critical requirement and sources of further useful reference information. It is intended primarily to help with the education and training of supplier's staff but will also be useful for the training of appropriate pharmaceutical industry staff. The document has been developed by a team of pharmaceutical and supply industry personnel led by Roy Evans.

The launch will cover

- Why PS 9004 was developed
- Show how to find your way around it, highlighting the key features such as easy to follow schematics illustrating the significance of the GMP clauses in PS 9000.
- The value of PS 9004 to trainers and QA managers in the supply industry and for Purchasing and Quality professionals in the Pharma industry

There will be several small presentations hosted by supporting pharmaceutical companies, covering each region of the country, and will highlight how PS 9004 will help users of PS 9000 implement its provisions.
